

- Downtime: The downtime is defined as the required time to recover.
  - Failure Frequency: It is the frequency when it fails to work the way it is intended.
  - Catastrophe: It indicates that the network has been attacked by some unexpected event such as fire, earthquake.
-

5) Which are the different factors that affect the security of a network?

There are mainly two security affecting factors:

- Unauthorized Access
  - Viruses
  -
-

6) Which are the different factors that affect the reliability of a network?

The following factors affect the reliability of a network:

- Frequency of failure
  - Recovery time of a network after a failure
-

7) Which are the different factors that affect the performance of a network?

The following factors affect the performance of a network:

- Large number of users
- Transmission medium types
- Hardware
- Software